Though Frank Guyton was raised in Delaware, he became a citizen of the fashion world when, at the age of 16, a scout spotted him at a mall and recruited him to model. His career not only took him to New York, L.A., Milan, Paris, London, Germany and South Africa, it provided him with an abiding love of painting, sculpture, architecture, and light, as well as an intimate view of the fashion and beauty industries. After a brief stint in advertising in 2003, Guyton was approached to join the team of an up and coming cosmetic company. Though he began in product development the brand recognized his natural ability, and soon convinced him to study the art of makeup. Frank Guyton has been going strong ever since, alternating between celebrities, editorial, film, music videos and television work with segments seen on The Oprah Winfrey Show, The OWN Network, Good Morning America, The Today Show, Style T.V. and many others. Along the way, Guyton has been privileged to work amongst some extraordinary women. His work has been showcased in magazines such as Harper's Bazaar, Allure, V Magazine, Essence, The Oprah Winfrey Magazine and other widely known publications. As one of Manhattan's most sought after makeup artists, Guyton continues to create and contribute by sharing his sophisticated aesthetic with top celebrities and beauty companies. Says Guyton, "If I can help amplify someone's natural beauty, bring out her best qualities and help her project who she wants be—mission accomplished!"
